The table was covered with an imported lace broadcloth centered with five-tiered wedding cake. Crystal candelabras of long yellow tapers. Members of the family and friends poured throughout the afternoon and evening.

Howard Holland

Howard Holland, supervisor of safety, at Indiana Harbor plant, has had a colorful experience since he ventured out into the world to work. His trail began in La Porte, Ind., at the age of 13 as a grocery boy after school and on Saturdays and has led to the important position he now holds as head of the Safety Department at Harbor Works.

He is strictly a Hoosier, born in Mill Creek, Ind., spent part of his boyhood days in La Porte, and moved to the East Chicago area at the age of 14. Soon after moving to East Chicago he became a newsboy, working out of the old Luken's News Agency. In 1917 he tried his hand as a U. S. mail carrier.

In 1919 he turned to the steel industry and worked for Inland Steel as a steel chaser at the soaking pits. But his best move was when he decided to start at Harbor Works in 1920. He has about 29 years of service with the company, all at the Harbor plant.

His first job at Harbor Works was time clerk in the Yard Labor Department. He advanced to labor foreman and then to general foreman the position he was holding when he decided to enter the safety field in November, 1928.

Gets Good Advice

When opportunity knocked on the door for entering the safety field he had a talk with Harry Linderman, then superintendent of the Yard Labor Department at Indiana Harbor. Linderman, recognizing Holland's ability and ambitions to advance, advised him to enter the safety field where new emphasis was being placed on safety and opportunities were sure to arise. He wasn't kidding, as opportunities came for Howard, principally because he was aggressive, learned the business and wanted to advance.

November 1949

His first job in the safety field was safety inspector. In 1943 he was promoted to chief safety inspector and two years later to his present administrative position.

Besides engineering educational safety programs with the company his services were in demand as instructor in safety engineering during the war. He served three years as instructor in safety engineering with the Illinois Institute of Technology War Training Program.

Has Four Sons

The Hollands live in East Chicago. There are four sons: Howard Russell, 24, served in the navy in World War II and now is attending Tri-State College, majoring in civil engineering; Richard Lewis, 21, also served in the navy, is attending Purdue University, studying mechanical engineering; James Charles, 18, employed in Harbor Works Electrical Department; and Robert Alan, aged 9, attending Harrison School in East Chicago. The two elder sons are married.

Howard's foremost hobbies are his family, home decorating and woodwork. He is fond of fishing, baseball, football and basketball.

His brother, Walter, an employee of the Electrical Department, has 26 years of service with the company. His stepfather, James Trainor, a retired employee, spent many years at Harbor plant as yardmaster and conductor in the Transportation Department.

Opportunities Good

"Opportunities for advancement with this company are good. My advice to young chaps joining the company is to learn their jobs thoroughly, do more than the job requires by learning and preparing for the jobs ahead. Study and indicate by action your honest and sincere effort to do a job well and show interest and determination to learn the job ahead. A good plan to follow is—Do unto others that which you would have others do unto you," Holland said.

Bulletin reporter Harry Hartman with Phillip, Sheila and Michael Crouthers, who helped grandfather celebrate his birthday recently.

What Is Success?

*It's doing your job the best you can,
And being just to your fellow man;
Not making money, but holding friends,
And staying true to your aims and ends.*

*It's figuring how and learning why,
And looking forward and thinking
high,
And dreaming little and doing much;
It's keeping always in closest touch
With what is best in word and deed;*

*It's daring blithely the field of chance
While making a labor of brave romance.*

*It's going onward despite defeat
And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet;*

*It's being clean and it's playing fair;
It's laughing lightly at Dame
Despair;*

*It's looking up at the stars above
And drinking deeply of life and love.*

*It's struggling on with the will to win
By taking loss with a cheerful grin.
It's sharing sorrow and work and mirth,
And making better this good old earth.*

It's serving, striving through strain and stress;

*It's doing your noblest—that's Success.

Peace On Earth

Good Will Toward Men

St. Matthew 2, 1 to 12
St. Luke 2, 1 to 20

And it came to pass that in those days there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

And all went to be taxed, everyone to his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the City of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David.)

To be taxed with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in that same country, shepherds abiding in the field keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not; behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us go now even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem.

Saying, Where is He that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen His star in the east, and are come to worship Him.

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judaea; for thus it is written by the prophet,

And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, art not the least among the princes of Judah; for out of thee shall come a Governor that shall rule my people Israel.

Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found Him bring me word again that I may come and worship Him also.

When they had heard the king they departed; and lo, the star which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

And when they had come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary, His mother, and fell down, and worshipped Him; and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts; gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

One hundred years ago streams of men and women pushed their way across wide open spaces of the western plains, or braved long ocean voyages to reach California in search of wealth. Some never finished the trip. Bleached bones along the trail marked the end of many a dream. Others arrived on the western coast but failed to find the rainbow. Others made lucky strikes and be-

Make new friends, but keep the old;
Those are silver, these are gold.
New-made friendships, like new wine,
Age will mellow and refine.
Friendships that have stood the test—
Time and change—are surely best;
How may wrinkles, hair grow gray,
Friendship never knows decay.
For 'mid old friends, tried and true,
Once more we our youth renew.
But old friends, alas! may die;
New friends must their place supply.
Clerical friendship in your breast—
New is good, but old is best;
Make new friends, but keep the old;
These are silver, these are gold.

MOTHER

By C. W. Russell

To that wonderful Mother
Where e're she may be,
She may be with you
Or, far 'cross the sea.

In the land of the living,
Or, passed on before;
How much we should love her
For what she stands for.

Wake up! son or daughter,
Don't let the day pass
With no word or greeting
From her laddie or lass.

Send her some message,
This glad some day,
For what she has gone through,
You ne're can repay.

A kiss, if she's near you,
A word, and a smile,
Will make her feel happy,
And think life's worth while.

A prayer, in her memory,
If she's gone on before
To that beautiful land
Where we sorrow, no more.

So let's pause, for a moment,
If not any longer,
Pay homage, to her,
'Twill make you much stronger.

To press onward and forward
In the battle of life,
'Twill make the road smoother
Through the toil and the strife.

She's watching and waiting
Where e're she may be,
For a word from her child
Whom she held on her knee.
