

REFERENCE MATERIALS for the Marktown Historic District East Chicago, Indiana

Since the early 1970s when research was being conducted to place the Marktown subdivision of East Chicago on the National Register of Historic Places, an archive of reference materials has been collected and preserved for future generations. So extensive are the periodical references alone that a privately printed and indexed copy of the articles has been presented in book form titled Marktown In Print. As a companion of this book a text titled Marktown On The Party Line was also issued in a very limited edition.

Beyond these two outstanding publications, the Marktown Preservation Society, Inc. has also issued a monthly newsletter beginning in December 2002. The newsletter is titled Marktown Update and a comprehensive index of the newsletter as well as an archive of all of the past issues can be found on this web site in the COMMUNITY section. You will also find a series of PDFs of all of the scanned images and text of Marktown on the Party Line.

Along with these items, we have included a listing of books that include at least reference to Marktown and key titles in reference to early 20th century industrial housing and the English Garden City Concept as promoted by Ebenezer Howard.

Over the years a number of video programs have either included reference to Marktown or have been created as educational tools by the Marktown Preservation Society, Inc.

We have also made it a point of collecting various blueprints and plans in reference to this most unique and endangered of neighborhoods.
